Considering therefore the ~~subject~~ as one open to discussion, I beg to point out that the idea of employing paid labourers to drag the car on such occasion is contrary to prisa Hindu feeling. I do not know of any such practice elsewhere. The public fairs and large landowners, big merchants & other wealthy people send their men. Moreover the sanction of this grant will create a very inconvenient precedent as other institutions may follow with similar claims. Failing others, even the students of public edl institutions will gladly undertake the work if they are only asked

& Item XII of Schedule.

It is true that Govt for dragging temple cars is not ordinarily charged or paid. Neither do the car processions start or end at any fixed time. In the present case the paid men will form only a small portion of the men dragging and will be employed in keeping the others up to the work.

9 Further the conditions of these temples are altogether different. They are situated in the immediate vicinity of the Palace and their cars use the main streets surrounding it is necessary therefore to provide for the orderly conduct of the processions and for their deviation being kept within convenient limits.

10 The sum required is apparently it- all very small and ~~could~~ could not be met from the savings of the existing allotments. As this

SECTION Muzrai

FILE 152-16

SERIAL No. 1

Dear Mr. Hiriyannaiya,

On the occasion of car festivals in the marginally-noted Palace Muzrai institutions at Mysore, the practice has been till now to depute recruits and ren from the Kille Kachery and some other Ilakhas of the Palace to help devotees in dragging the Rathams. The Bakshi in charge of the Kille Kachery having for the first time last year brought to notice that the continuance of the practice is likely to dislocate the regular work of the department, the whole question was examined in consultation with the Palace Controller and the conclusion arrived at after a consideration of all aspects of the case has been that it would be better to get work of the kind in question done by paid labour instead of from assistance obtained from the Palace Ilakhas. The cost of having the cars of the temples in question drawn is estimated by the Palace Controller at Rs.100/- a year. This year's cost will therefore have to be met from the Muzrai savings and it would be necessary to provide an item of Rs.100/- per year for this purpose in the Palace Muzrai budget from next year. I am accordingly to request you to kindly have necessary orders passed, with the Dewan's approval.
